APC Committee, Explanatory Note to APC, Second Edition

10.04.2008

Explanatory Note to Part II "Introduction: Brief description of the pharmaceutical processes used in anthroposophic pharmacy"

"Maturation time" is a time of rest which is used for several preparations in order to promote their ripening. A maturation time can be part of the production method for example for extracts, compositions, mixtures or some potentised preparations. The maturation time can vary and has to be established individually for each preparation.
